What You Are Seeking

In the advertising section of the average daily newspaper we find many expressions of need, such as home or help or employment wanted; and often a personal column implying loneliness or the need of healing broken family relationships. This is all typical of a society in which one has never another say. "If only I had a home of my own, I should be so happy"; or "If I had someone else to work, things would be different." Many times the attainment of the desired end leaves something still lacking.

The truth is that most people are really seeking God. "But I am not seeking God," one may say. "I have never been attracted to Him. As a matter of fact, it makes me rather uncomfortable to speak of Him. Let me be practical and keep my feet on the ground. A mighty God sitting on a heavenly throne has no appeal for me."

Such a concept of God has no appeal to any intelligent person. To understand Him one must learn His true nature. To the question, "What is God?" Mary Baker Eddy has replied in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" (p. 463). "God is incorporeal, divine, supreme, infinite Mind, Spirit, Soul, Principle, Life, Truth, Love."

"To speak of God as Principle seems rather cold," you may say. But it is really cold! A dictionary defines the word "principle" in part as follows: "Justice, equity, integrity; source, origin, cause." Do not these words apply intelligently to the Supreme Being?

To speak of God as Love is in accordance with the Scriptures. "God is love; and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him" (1 John 4:16). How practical is this name for God?

The writer remembers a road through lovely country which suddenly twisted a steep hill and curved around a rock. On the rock was pointed in large letters, "Prepare to meet thy God" (Amos 4:12). "To meet God is not to be feared; it is not something which happens only after death. God is Life, and we meet Him in every activity of our day. We are constantly with Him. God, being Life, is a law of attraction to death. Did not Jesus prove this for us when he raised Lazarus, restored the widow's son, revived the daughter of Jairus, and finally stepped from the sepulcher triumphant in the glory of unconquerable Life?

Our activities are governed by intelligence when we remember that God is our Mind. We are not subject to material limitations when we prove that in reality we are the children of Spirit. REMEMBER AMERICA; FORGET POLITICS

The indelible impression of politics is marking public officials and their daily doings more and more definitely every day now as the nominating conventions recede and the general election looms on the horizon. The Whitehouse, the Congress, and the candidates are the labor over the building of the political fences around the home fires, all are surrounded by whatever is said, done or implied.

And in lots of cases the political implications are obvious. No stretch of the imagination is needed to interpret the political meaning that is interlarded since, from the President on down, there are so many of those in public life who seem to have adjourned most everything else in the interest of the campaign. And since the President began so early in the fray to play politics with every day life, at Philadelphia, at Washington, by radio, all over the nation, he can logically expect to have the critics hard on the heels of every public move he makes.

There are those of us who have been wondering for several years why so many public officials and federal employees have laid themselves, and their superiors in office, open to question as to their loyalty. If it has taken politics to bring out the true colors of quizzings and disloyal subjects within the circle of those connected with the federal administration and to bring such to account and to the light, then, we would say, more power to politics, in that particular field.

The President has said that much of the information uncovered by Congressional investigators is not new, and we believe that he is right. But what has been known for years, and now comes to light, is that the President has supported the New Deal, fighting "politics" when ugly stories of disloyalty begin figuring in the news.

Much of the subject matter of these news stories represents serious threats to the American people. Politics, or no politics, they shouldn't be trifled with.

Says the Independent United States News, "One looks back at the many indictments on a criminal basis filed by the Democratic administration under the antitrust laws—hardly any of which, incidentally, has resulted in a criminal conviction in court—and one wonders why the Department of Justice hesitates now when it never hesitated too much before." To hesitate too long on such precarious ground is potentially to be lost. In these days of "war rumors" it's had enough to have enemies within. This country of ours did enough sleeping for Pearl Harbor. It's time to wake up. World War III may possibly be averted.

This is something that is more important than electing a President in the United States. The President is to be. It should be beyond the political realm, to be sure. All parties in American politics, worthy of the right to be on the American ballot, should be united against that which is subversive to the American Government.

KENTUCKIAN APPEARED IN THRILLER

Motion picture fans might like to know that some of the first scenic pictures taken in America were taken about the time the gold rush started in Alaska. The "Call of the Yukon" in 1897-8, which brought thousands of men from Puke Sound and through tortuous Chilkoot Pass, also brought the motion picture camera.

Over snow wastes for thousands of miles by dog sled and up the Yukon river when it was not frozen went two adventurous men, the so-called "Miles Brothers" of Cincinnati. They had been home-town photographers and had journeyed to Ireland and in Canada. They had made "robbert" scenes, later to be shown in the small picture houses springing up everywhere. One theater was started in Nome, Alaska. Reels were made of the new gold country to be sent for exhibition at the Paris Exposition of 1900. In 1903 in New York City, Edwin S. Porter, cameraman and director for the Edison studios filmed the sensational "Great Train Robbery" with a cast of more than 100. This was soon followed by "The Great Bank Robbery" and other thrillers. The Great Train Robbery was staged in the West Orange hills of New Jersey near Paterson, N. J. The train was held up, the engineer ordered to uncouple and then steam to the next station, leaving the train passengers to be "robbed" in the coaches, and the firemen (a dummy) thrown off the train near the Passaic River bridge. The "robbers" escaped into the wild woods, found a ranch house, held it up, had a lively dance, then got away before they could be overtaken by a quickly formed posse.

In this great picture which was shown in nearly every picture house in America and in Europe, a Kentucky newspaper man who had been working on the New York Times took part. He was the late Paul Shouse, son of the late Rev. John S. Shouse of Lexington, and a brother of J. H. Shouse, well known in politics, and who served in the National Congress.

IT MIGHT BE TRUE

One of the best authorities in World affairs now living on the sidelines in Washington, D. C. observes that "neither the United States nor Russia is doing too well." And we are told that Britain is almost in the doghouse as having terrific internal troubles. France is wobbling. Italy is still mired in the mire of all cracks and on the edge of starvation—next door to the poorhouse. The United States is divided on what it should do about Russia. One day we think we are going to crack down on Stalin and the next day we are reporting on how Russia is to patch up things with Molotov. In fact, "NOBODY KNOWS NOTHING,"—not even the broadcasters and commentators.

Sparks and Sundries

By Samuel H. Stuart

I watched a group of people congregate to go to a church picnic on a chartered bus. The little assemblage of some 20 persons who finally gathered included seven or eight middle-aged, middle-class women, three girls of about 18, three teen-age boys and a few children. The last arrival was a matronly-looking woman of about 30—the only representative of the population! According to authorities on the subject, it is the most important age-group which has almost wholly abandoned even the semblance of religious faith and practices and much of that held and practiced must be granted to be far from a vital, life-giving, heart-warming brand of religion.

J. Edgar Hoover, in a radio broadcast from Washington, said: "Our generation, it seems, has allowed old religious practices to slip into oblivion. As a result, the future of the nation and the nation has suffered." When the F. B. I. chief says "our generation" he refers to those who were lacking in that Lutheran group going to the church picnic for the first time from mid-life, from the "marrying-age" to the time of life when people see their offspring beginning themselves to seek mates.

The really vital time of parenthood, when men and women have the responsibility of new life, with minds to be directed, in their sphere of influence. It is the time of the future of a partner to the culmination of the children's education, when if they do not need the support, the comfort and the wisdom which only religion can provide. It is the time when the gods come to be built upon and it is an inviting breeding ground for moral decay and crime. My hope for the future of the nation is predicated upon the faith in God which is nurtured in the family. The questions is: who are you and you and you going to do about it?

CAPITOL COMMENTS

By David M. R.

We don't like to pull a Winchester and did predict that Senator Barkley would be on the Democratic ticket as President-elect Truman's running mate. I did predict that Virgil Chapman would win by eight to ten thousand votes. I am predicting now that John Sherman Cooper will beat Virgil Chapman for the United States Senate, and that there will be more ticket scratching in this election than Kentuckians have seen since the time that Senator Cooper was running for Vice-President and Cooper for the United States Senate, and that there will be more ticket scratching in this election than Kentuckians have seen since the time that Senator Cooper was running for Vice-President and Cooper for the United States Senate, and that there will be more ticket scratching in this election than Kentuckians have seen since the time that Senator Cooper was running for Vice-President and Cooper for the United States Senate.

cent party on their tobacco. This was the only agricultural product that had this high parity. He also voted against the weak and ineffectual housing bill the special session of Congress passed. He stated that it did not provide for veterans and was definitely inadequate. It's nice to see a Representative or Senator put the welfare of the people above political party lines. There are more than two and one-half million people on the Federal payroll. That is almost one Federal employee to every fifty people in this country and that includes men, women and children. There are approximately 4,000 people on the state payroll and Kentucky has a population of 2,700,000. Other states have approximately the same proportion of state employees. If this continues to increase as it has in the last few years, it will get to the point where government employees will be forced to work for government employees and we will turn to socialism. This is a drastic statement but the trend seems to be in that direction and we should take a stand now and in every election against needless Federal and State payrolls and the employment of politicians for political purposes.

BLOW YOUR HORN
 Alop the Ashland-Cold Grove Bridge a big new sign to tell motorists from distant places that they can visit Ashland over a new bridge. The sign was donated by the Ashland Junior Chamber of Commerce.

In itself, the Ashland sign is not front page news, but it is important to Kentuckians because it is evidence that we are working up to the value of publicity. State authorities assure us that roadside signs directing travelers to the Kentucky Dam will be up in the near future, and that the attention of travelers will be directed to all but forgotten Mammoth Cave. Illustrated literature glorifying the state's scenic attractions is being sent to hotels and filling stations all over the nation.

Let me take you 35 years into the past and a distance of 2500 miles. I was going by train from Portland, Oregon to San Francisco. Soon after the train crossed the line into the Golden State I began to see huge billboards high up on mountainsides. They were so high I wondered how the sign makers got the material up there. One billboard would say Sikivou County marketed 100 million pounds of lumber annually. Another proclaimed the production of hundreds of thousands of sheep and so on.

I don't know when California started publicizing itself. In all probability there were born press agents among the Forty-niners. Anyway, there are about three million people in the state now who could be classed as first-rate press agents. And there are more than two and one-half million people on the Federal payroll. That is almost one Federal employee to every fifty people in this country and that includes men, women and children. There are approximately 4,000 people on the state payroll and Kentucky has a population of 2,700,000. Other states have approximately the same proportion of state employees. If this continues to increase as it has in the last few years, it will get to the point where government employees will be forced to work for government employees and we will turn to socialism. This is a drastic statement but the trend seems to be in that direction and we should take a stand now and in every election against needless Federal and State payrolls and the employment of politicians for political purposes.

What did California have in natural resources 100 years ago? Some gold mines and timber were her chief material assets. The land that now helps to feed a very large part of the country's population was desert and had to be irrigated with high water from the desert. The land needed people from this side of the Sierra Nevada Mountains to work it. And the ballyhoo got them—got them from Kentucky and other states where fertility was high, water fell from clouds and markets were 2,000 miles closer. California became a magnet for advertising. Capital, brain ambition, courage, the assets California needed were lured from regions that had better natural resources than the Pacific Coast could actually offer. During the century California has been getting richer and richer, Kentucky has been lagging behind the more progressive states. And one of the main reasons is that our people just haven't realized the value of natural resources. But, thank goodness, we are waking up.

DISTINCTIVE AREAS

With the passing of the small community as a center, which I talked about in my last article, there is likely to be a great increase in larger geographical areas, which include or did include many such small centers. Kentucky, like many other states, is made up of sections. First of all, there are six geological areas: the Mountains, the Bluegrass, the Knobs, the Pennyroyal, the Western Coalfields, and the Jackson Purchase. Each one of these has its own distinctive features. To have known even one such area well gives one a feeling of knowing a whole little world. Little differences in interests, in speech, in local customs have a flavor all out of proportion to their actual importance. The soil or the minerals have determined many of the differences. But even today there are smaller units that are quite as distinctive as the larger ones. A whole book could be written about these little sections. I shall mention only a very few that I have known a little about.

Since I grew up in the Jackson Purchase, I naturally think of areas there, some of them unimportant to me in my last article, but some of them are of great importance. The soil or the minerals have determined many of the differences. But even today there are smaller units that are quite as distinctive as the larger ones. A whole book could be written about these little sections. I shall mention only a very few that I have known a little about.

Mr. Geo. Seitz, Miss Jennie Seitz and little nephew, Dennis Seitz, were callers Saturday evening of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Moody and family.

The Circle of the Presbyterian Church met Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Mary Seitz and daughter.

THE JEFFERSONIAN

Oliver, Mrs. C. R. Hunt and the latter, friend from Texas, the latter, the guest of honor is a sister of the Olivers. They all report a pleasant visit, and a most delicious dinner.

Mrs. T. D. Price left Wednesday to join her husband who has been attending Yale University. They will spend a few days at Ridge Crest and return home Thursday.

Visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Jones and Mrs. C. R. Hart last week were friends from Florida and Mrs. J. H. Shively. Mrs. L. C. Jones, Mrs. J. E. Stanford and Mrs. Tracy Miller attended the Homemakers picnic Friday at Frick's Camp.

They all report a real picnic, large crowd and eats galore. After the business session, Mrs. J. E. Stanford, the efficient recreation leader, who is alive with jokes, stunts, skits etc., put on something a little unusual. This time when she had Mrs. L. P. Jones to pose as a—should I say "Antique Model" that will please all the antique lovers.

Mrs. J. E. Stanford entertained the following Thursday at her beautiful and ever welcome home on Fern Valley Road. Mrs. Harriet Oliver, Mrs. Marcus model was dressed very quaintly and adorned with much jewelry, combs etc., numbering, I believe, about 30 pieces which composed her make-up. The idea was to see who could remember and name the most articles after it was certainly an occasion long to be remembered.

Compare the Values!...
Compare the Prices!...
—see why

MORE PEOPLE BUY CHEVROLETS THAN ANY OTHER CAR

COMPARE the values; compare the prices... Do this and you'll know that now more than ever before CHEVROLET and ONLY CHEVROLET is FIRST in Big-Car quality at lowest price, just as it is first in nationwide demand for the total 17-year period, 1931 to date.

To compare the values is to know that only Chevrolet brings you the Big-Car riding-smoothness of the original and outstanding United Kneecor Action Ride... the Big-Car performance and dependability of a world's champion Valve-in-Head engine... the Big-Car beauty and luxury of the enviable Body by Fisher... the Big-Car safety of Fisher Unaltered Body-Construction and Positive-Action Hydraulic Brakes... plus many another major quality advantage still not available in any other motor car in its field.

And to compare the prices is to know that Chevrolet prices are the lowest in the field... and that Chevrolet value continues to be the highest in its field!

That is why more and more people in all parts of the country are deciding, more and more enthusiastically, that only one is Number One, only Chevrolet is first.

That is why we believe you, too, will make this same decision when you compare the values and compare the prices... for you win in every way with Chevrolet!

FIRST in Riding-Smoothness! You just can't beat the genuine United Kneecor Action Gliding Ride for real riding-smoothness—real travel—over any and all kinds of roads, from boulevard to byway, and, remember, this famous "Kneecor-Action" ride is exclusive to Chevrolet and more expensive cars.

FIRST in Thrills with Thrill! There's nothing like Chevrolet's world's champion Valve-in-Head engine for thrills and thrills. It holds all records for miles served, covers untold, and years tested and proved. It embodies that extra-sound, extra-dependable Valve-in-Head design, found elsewhere only in costlier cars.

FIRST in Tasteful Beauty! You will be perfectly sure of your car's beauty-leadership when you own a car with the world-famous Body by Fisher; and this most desired and desirable of all car bodies—supremely beautiful from every angle, inside and out—is available only on Chevrolet and higher-priced cars.

FIRST in All-Round Safety! You and your family will enjoy extra safety, too, the triple safety protection of Fisher Unaltered Body-Construction, the United Kneecor Action Gliding Ride and Positive-Action Hydraulic Brakes—another combination of features found only in Chevrolet and higher-priced cars.
